

QuEST Forum's Code of Conduct

QuEST Forum requires its members, staff, working committees, and executive board to conduct themselves ethically and to:

- Be honest and impartial in serving the public, associates, customers and suppliers
- Treat fairly all persons regardless of such factors as race, religion, gender, disability, age, or national origin
- Strive to increase the competence and prestige of the quality, telecommunications, and other professions represented within the QuEST Forum
- Assist colleagues and co-workers in their professional development and support them in following this code of conduct
- Treat each other with professional respect and deliberate changes to the TL 9000 standard with the utmost civility, while recognizing there may be passionate differences of opinion
- Respect all opinions and votes, without repercussions to those that differ with our own
- Abide by the QuEST Forum By-laws and Antitrust Guidelines
- Act as faithful agents or trustees, avoiding conflicts of interest and the appearance of conflicts of interest.
