

Trevor Frenzel – Senior Software Developer

Trevor Frenzel became a member of the Institute of Data Analytics team at UT Dallas in October of 2014. Though Trevor's primary function with the iDa team is software development, he participates in almost all aspects of all active projects.

Trevor is a highly experienced IT professional with a diverse skill set in wide-ranging areas of software development and IT infrastructure, and a background in product development and small business startups. Having spent many years as an independent contractor, Trevor maintains an entrepreneurial mentality that enjoys challenges and implementing solutions for specific business needs.
